From the Vicar

Jesus was a respected teacher and healer, and he usually drew a crowd wherever he went, however few people followed him completely during his ministry. His betrayal and crucifixion is a stark reminder of how many people stayed to the end of Jesus' ministry.

Jesus knew his actions would provide proof of God's love and grace but this can only be truly experienced when one abandons self-will in the desire to relate to the creator of all.

No amount of labour or good intentions will provide us with an honest sense of self worth. The book of Ecclesiastes was written to teach this truth.

We may attempt to follow Christ's example but unless we believe in God's all sufficient grace, we will always struggle. Jesus Christ pointed to God as the One who holds all the power, honour and glory. The One who creates and sustains, nourishes and holds each one of us as precious.

I pray that we continually look to Jesus' examples but always rest in God's plans for you.
